Fresh Market 2023

brought together the most important retailers and distributors in one place!

On 20 September 2023, at MCC Mazurkas, the 17th edition of a unique event for the fruit and vegetable industry took place – Fresh Market 2023 B2B Meeting and Trade Show. For more than fifteen years, Fresh Market remains a key meeting ground for producers, distributors, and retail chains from the fruit, vegetable, and flower industry. The long-standing tradition has made this event one of the most important in the wholesale trade sector in Poland and Central Europe.

This year's edition, sponsored by AKSUN, one of Turkey's largest fruit and vegetable exporters, attracted several hundred participants from over 30 countries around the world, including representatives of 24 retail chains such as Żabka, Carrefour, Biedronka, Arhelan, Auchan, Stokrotka, Frisco, DINO, SPAR, E.Leclerc, Intermarche, Bricomarche from Poland, PROFI from Romania, COOP Jednota from Slovakia, RIMI Baltic from Latvia, Maxima from Lithuania, BINGO from Bosnia and Herzegovina or Rohlik from the Czech Republic. The hybrid formula of the event was also maintained, providing the opportunity to hold online meetings with representatives of POLO Market, Selgros, Chata Polska, Netto from Poland as well as Varus and ATB from Ukraine.

Polish fresh fruit and vegetables attracted exceptional interest during the B2B meetings held, bringing to Fresh Market 2023 buyers of these products from the retail chains COOP Jednota from Slovakia, RIMI Baltic from Latvia and several other countries.

A new addition to Fresh Market 2023 was the Distributors Hub, which allows participants to establish direct contacts with key distributors and logistics companies that can provide a bridge between the producer and the retail chain. Representatives from Targban, ConsorFruit, Fresh World International, OGL-Polska and many others were available for cooperation talks. Especially appreciated among logistics companies was Greenyard Logistics Poland.

In addition to meetings with retail chain buyers and distributors, event participants were able to visit unique stands in the Exhibitors Hub. Fresh Market 2023 featured, among others, Mercamadrid – the largest food trading hub in Europe, Moldova Fruct – the largest association of fruit producers and exporters in Moldova, Hazera – a world leader in the seed industry, Redpack – a leader in the production of flow-pack packaging machines and many others. Among the products and services presented, the ecological packaging EARTHPACK from Cristobal Meseguer SA and fresh HPP juices from MACE from Italy stood out most.

With the support of the Embassy of the Netherlands in Poland and in collaboration with FloraCulture International magazine and The International Association of Horticultural Producers (AIPH), Fresh Market 2023 also provided an opportunity to learn about innovations in the floral industry. Dutch suppliers of cut flowers, bouquets, potted plants, garden plants, shrubs, trees, and flower bulbs had the chance to showcase their products to retailers like BRICOMARCHE from Poland.

In the evening, participants could attend a formal cocktail dinner party where prestigious Fresh Market Award 2023 prizes were presented to the best and most innovative products of the year.

The main award went to Hazera Poland and G's Polska for their innovative cabbage variety – “Callaway F1”. This cabbage stands out with its flat head shape and exceptional taste and crunchiness, making it an ideal product for various culinary dishes. Creative wraps made from the leaves of this flat cabbage delighted participants and helped companies to win the Fresh Market Award 2023 trophy.

The conclusion of Fresh Market 2023 provided an excellent opportunity to make new business contacts and exchange experiences in the fruit, vegetable, and flower industry.

The commercial world of cut chrysanthemums

How to maximize profits from selling cut flowers? Choosing chrysanthemums. It is a durable flower for bouquets with excellent value for money.

Cut chrysanthemum is one of the flowers that guarantee success in every respect. It attracts attention with its volume and colors. It comes in various shapes and sizes. Importantly, it is available all year round, suitable for many different occasions, such as birthdays, name days, Women's Day, Mother's Day, Father's Day or Teacher's Day. Perfect for both single and mixed bouquets, monochromatic and multi-colored arrangements. It is an extremely durable and long-lasting flower that looks perfect in a vase for up to two weeks, pleasing the eyes of the recipient. In the case of cut chrysanthemum, we can talk about quality combined with an affordable price. These are the key aspects needed to gain crowds of satisfied customers.

Cut chrysanthemums are divided into species and varieties, including: on the shape of flowers, form, color or habit. Chrysanthemum flowers can be single, anemone, needle-shaped, double, semi-double, decorative, pompon-shaped. The types include: disbudded chrysanthemum, i.e. one large flower on a stem, spray chrysanthemum – a flower bud with many flowers on the stem, and santini, meaning a lush flower bud with smaller flowers. In the case of santini chrysanthemums, the leaves are slightly more delicate and the stem is slightly shorter.

This diversity allows to create simple mixes with chrysanthemums of various shapes, giving the impression of mixed multi-flower bouquets. Moreover, cut chrysanthemums surprise with their extremely rich, optimistic colors. They are available in white, yellow, brick red, orange, red, pink, purple, salmon, burgundy and two-color versions. Such a wide palette allows to create bouquets in infinitely many variations that will never get boring.

The range of chrysanthemums for cut flowers is constantly expanding. In the Netherlands, over 1.25 billion of these colorful flowers grow annually on approximately 460 hectares. This area can be compared to 700 football fields filled with flowers. The Chryson Foundation, which was established thanks to the cooperation of all Dutch breeders (creators of new varieties) and producers of cut chrysanthemums, ensures the constant expansion of the chrysanthemum offer.

Dutch chrysanthemum producers are extremely concerned about the future of our planet.

Therefore, they make joint efforts for sustainable development. This includes biological protection measures, heat storage, cogeneration installations and new cultivation techniques, thanks to which large energy and CO₂ savings are made. In the Netherlands, cut chrysanthemums are produced primarily for the European market, which greatly simplifies logistics, which in turn translates into a carbon footprint that can be kept at a low level.

The activity undertaken by the Chryson foundation is the promotional initiative “Just Chrysanthemum”, in short Just Chrys, represented in Poland by the agency, SIGMA International (Poland). Its main goal is to disseminate knowledge about the versatility, universality and durability of cut chrysanthemums and to constantly inspire the floristry industry to create new flower arrangements that are interesting from the customer’s point of view. Just Chrys builds a strong, positive image of cut chrysanthemums, stimulating the creation of an attractive flower offer oriented to the tastes and needs of customers. Chryson Foundation does not sell chrysanthemums, but shares its knowledge, experience and creativity. Thus, it improves the market position of cut chrysanthemums and increases sales of these unique flowers.

On the initiative of Just Chrys, new photo sessions of collections of fashionable seasonal arrangements are created each year, which the flower industry can use by distributing images free of charge for promotional purposes. The current range of cut chrysanthemums is available on the website JustChrys.com, where you can also find current and archival promotional materials and photos serving as inspiration for customers. Let consumers find out how colorful, versatile and surprising the world of cut chrysanthemums can be.

Mercamadrid, the city that never sleeps

Located in Madrid, one of the most beautiful European capitals, renowned for its innovation, culture, economy, gastronomy, and entertainment, lies Mercamadrid. A city spanning 222 hectares that comes to life while the city sleeps.

As night falls, a multitude of heavy-duty trucks supply the food market. Up to 800 trailers, on average, each night are responsible for providing Mercamadrid with a unique product offering in terms of quality, variety, and price. Its strategic location, with significant radial roads of the Community of Madrid and at the center of the national highway network that spans the country, just 20 minutes from Madrid Barajas Adolfo Suárez Airport, provides a tremendous strategic and logistical opportunity that Mercamadrid's companies have leveraged.

Currently, Mercamadrid stands as one of Spain's largest platforms for the distribution, commercialization, transformation, and logistics of food. It is an international reference in the distribution of fresh food, offering products from over 50 countries and the ability to distribute them to all five continents, within highly competitive timelines and processes.

Mercamadrid distributes food consumed by over 12 million people in Spain and opens numerous export routes each year. A prominent challenge for this city within the city is to become a leading platform for exporting fresh food. The Mercamadrid Foreign Action Office works towards this goal by supporting companies in export and internationalization processes.

With a fixed population of 9,000 people, representing direct job positions generated by over 800 installed companies, Mercamadrid welcomes professionals from the food industry who are visited by an average of 20,000 people daily, knowing they will find the best products here. Specialized trade, restaurants, supermarkets, distribution platforms, collectives, hospitality, and more are regular clients of the companies.

Mercamadrid is part of an extremely competitive and professionalized food chain, enabling access to a wide range of fresh, high-quality products with competitive prices and food safety guarantees. This Spanish fresh food distribution model allows for a diverse product offering within 5 minutes of every home and establishment.

In recent years, this stunning market has undergone a significant transformation, aiming to become Europe's first fully circular market. It lays the groundwork for the Food Unit of the future, with circularity as the core of transformation and a driving force for change. This transformation aligns with environmental and citizen demands, impacting the entire food chain and the city of Madrid. The project positions this major food platform as an active catalyst in sustainability, innovation, connectivity, and digitization within the sector.

A key pillar of this transformation is the digitization of services and processes. Mercamadrid Online, Spain's first virtual B2B wholesale market for fresh food, has become a reality that will shape the future of distribution and commercialization of fresh food. It already features an extensive product catalog with over 11,000 references covering three sectors: meats, fish, and fruits and vegetables. These products are available to registered buying companies on the platform, offering quality, traceability, and food safety – the hallmarks of Mercamadrid products – at any time and from anywhere.

As the sun rises, Mercamadrid awakens, knowing that once again, it has fulfilled its mission. Commercial activity decreases, making way for a multitude of tasks such as billing, orders for the next day, cleaning, and exportation. Despite the nocturnal nature, it's already an open secret – the products of Mercamadrid and the competitiveness of its companies are truly unique.

Logistics are firm Valentine's Day roses

Helping to build brand awareness around Kordes Jungpflanzen's latest Hydrangea macrophylla is Dolly Buster, aka Nora Baumberger, a former European adult movie star. There are still many excellent large-headed roses grown in Kenya, but they tend not to come to the market quite as competitively as they do from Colombia.

Rachel
Anderson

“The logistics for Valentine’s Day deliveries are firmly in place,” says Martin Hudson, co-founder and director of UK-based Flamingo Group International.

Martin Hudson notes that, as Flamingo has been growing flowers in Kenya since the 1980s, the group is accustomed to planning well in advance for February 14 to accommodate the extra peak in demand.

Tried and tested

What we’ve got has been tried and tested, so now we’re good,” says Hudson, who notes that, happily, growing conditions for the roses have been pretty normal this season.

As the roses have a short supply chain that sees them flown directly from Kenya to the UK, they are expected to be as fresh and long-lasting as ever.

Kenya’s capital city, Nairobi, has, over the decades, become a strong cargo-plane hub, says Hudson. He explains that Kenya is a good place to operate in Africa thanks to its busy horticulture and tea sectors and its tourism industry. “This means that it has passenger aircrafts flying in every day to and from London (UK) and Europe. So, as an origin from which to freight product, it’s helped by the combination of cargo carriers and passenger aircraft that will carry cargo. “The younger generation dreams of a new world, mainly full of colour and hope,” Rucar said.

firmly in place for roses from Kenya

Sea freight, Colombian roses and rose colours

More robust varieties of roses and other cut-flower types had recently enabled Flamingo to begin successfully transporting its products by sea freight out of Kenya – something that hadn't been possible in the past. However, this new development has, says Hudson, been temporarily disrupted by the devastating crises in the Middle East and the Red Sea.

“Whilst this situation is adding additional costs and delays in the supply chain, it will not affect this year’s Valentine’s Day peak – for which everything is firmly in place.”

Thanks to their larger heads, Colombia has the market for premium roses for Valentine’s Day. However, there are still many large-headed roses grown in Kenya, “but they tend not to come to the market quite as competitively as they do from Colombia,” notes Hudson.

That said, “Kenya is still the biggest part of our Valentine peak, but it’s the intermediate varieties that we are typically producing. These varieties have a good-sized head, but they’re probably not quite as large as the heads on the Columbian roses,” explains Hudson.

He adds: “Valentine’s Day is still dominated by red roses, although we do sell a lot of softer-coloured roses because we find there’s a demand from people who perhaps want to be a bit more subtle about the message they’re conveying!”

“We sell a lot of peach-coloured roses, and orange is very popular. But we cover every colour really, including pastels.”

This article was first published in the February 2024 issue of FloraCulture International.
